

END SHIFT • DESIGN SYSTEM V0.1

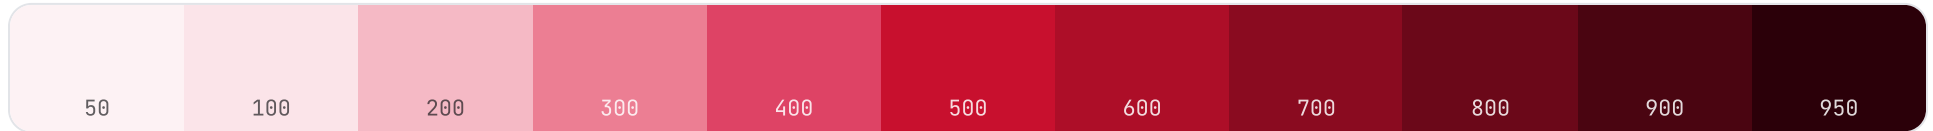

A no-nonsense system for getting things done before you lock up.

Built for back-of-house tablets, line phones, and shaky fingers at 11 PM. The aesthetic is utilitarian: crimson against soft grays, dense type, no decorative chrome. Every component earns its place by shortening the loop between a task and a check mark.

Color

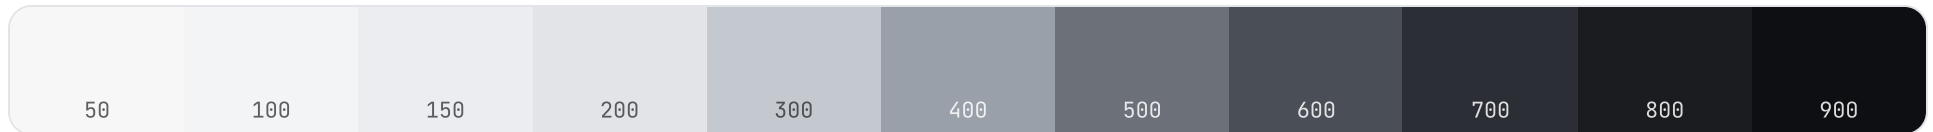

Crimson is the only chromatic color the user sees by default. The ramp gives backgrounds, hover states, and dangerous actions room to breathe without inventing new hues.

PRIMARY • CRIMSON

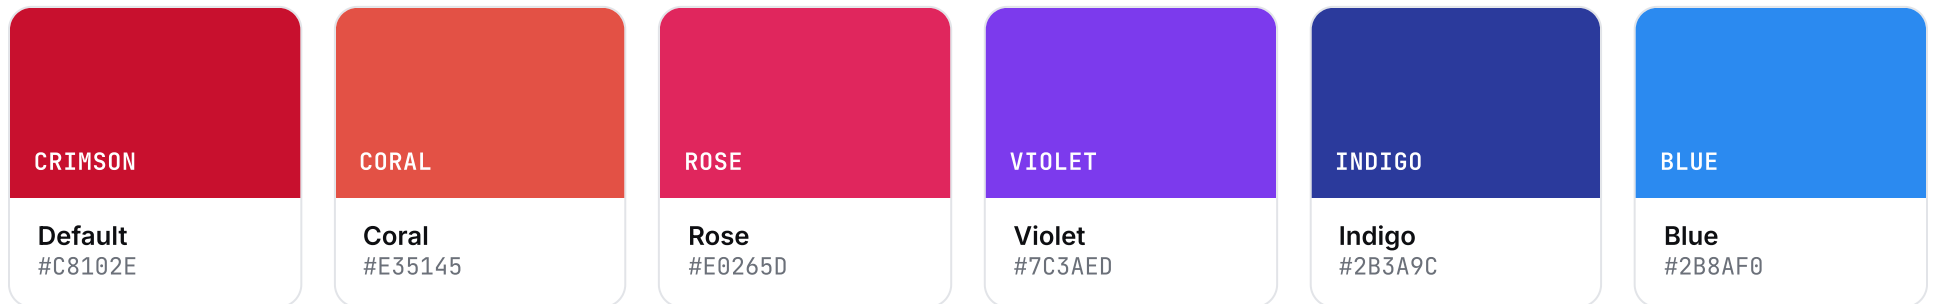

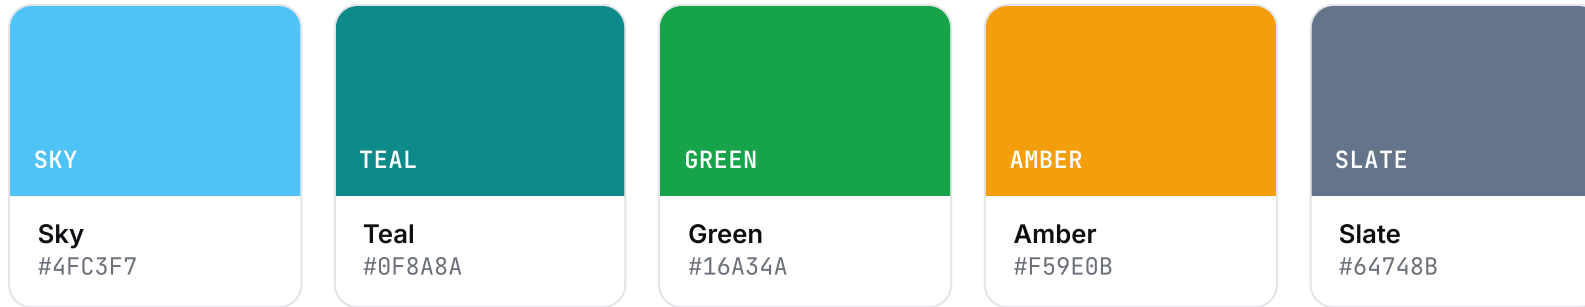

crimson-500 (#C8102E) is the brand token. 600 for hover, 700 for pressed, 50 for soft fills.

NEUTRAL • INK

USER ACCENTS (SELECTABLE IN SETTINGS)

Accents replace --brand at runtime. All UI tokens that depend on brand (header, primary CTA, check ring, focus ring) follow.

Typography

Inter for everything readable, JetBrains Mono for technical labels (counts, codes, token names). Letters are tight at display sizes, normal everywhere else.

Tokens

Radii, spacing, and shadow are deliberately small sets. If a new value is needed, fix the design instead.

Components

A tight kit. Most screens are assembled from headers, section bars, checklist rows, and the four button variants below.

BUTTONS
